FIRST PRIZE — $5.00

REPORTER
JUDITH KNIGHT

Dear Archie,

Nobody can say that my father isn't a good fisherman. He can even catch a chicken in a well! Last Sunday we came home from visiting some friends to find one of our hens missing a chick. My mother thought it might be under the house, so she got down on her hands and knees to look. We happened to have an old dry well under our house and my mother said she could hear the chick in the well.

My father got a flashlight and looked. Way down at the bottom he saw the chick. He took an old coffee can and tied it on the end of a fishing line and dropped it down into the well. He tried for ten minutes to no avail. Then, just as he was getting ready to give up, the chick jumped into the can. My father started pulling the can up. My mother and I kept our fingers crossed that the chick wouldn't fall out, and it didn't! The chick came up safe and unharmed, thanks to my father, the fisherman!

Dear Archie,

Last year I visited Latin America and while I was there I went to Rio de Janeiro, the capital of Brazil. Rio is a very beautiful city. It is the art and cultural center of the nation. Many of the nation's products are shipped from Rio.

While I was in Rio, I saw one of the best harbors. Just above the harbor, I saw a very beautiful statue called the Christ of Cocovado. At night huge electric floodlights outline the statue. And just opposite the statue is a peak called Sugar Loaf Mountain. Rio de Janeiro is probably one of the most beautiful cities in Latin America.

THIRD PRIZE — $2.00

REPORTER
BRUCE ALLEN

Dear Archie,

I have a ship in a bottle collection. I think it's very interesting to know how to get the ship into the bottle. First you carve out the hull of the ship and then you put up the mast with hinges. Then a string is attached to the mast. With the mast pointing to the stern, the ship slips easily into the bottle. Then you pull the strings and the mast flips up. Finally you cut and glue the strings and pop in the cork and your ship in a bottle is finished.

FOURTH PRIZE — $1.00

REPORTER
VALYNN BARLOW
2025 W. Madison
Phoenix, Ariz.

Dear Archie,

I would like to tell you about a trip I took to Yellowstone National Park last summer. We saw a stream of hot water in one place shoot over a hundred feet from the ground into the air. We found pools of boiling mud in another place. We could catch a fish in one pond and boil it in the pond next to it. We saw bears late in the afternoon. They came to our car to beg for food, but the Rangers told us not to feed them.
